PROF. COMSTOCK TALKS ON THE PROOF OF DR. COOK

By Associated Press.
Madison, Sept. 9.—Considerable interest is manifested by Professor C. G. Comstock of the University of Wisconsin concerning the controversy scientists are indulging in relative to the truth or untruth of the discovery of the north pole by Dr. F. A. Cook.

The Badger astronomer was asked yesterday as to what observations the explorer could have made that would prove to scientists that the story was true, and he replied: "The scientific evidences that can be offered by Dr. Cook in support of his claim that he reached the pole should consist of a series of elevations of the sun above the horizon measured with a sextant or similar instruments."

With the sextant, of which there are several forms, is determined the angular distance between the sun and earth or rather between the sun and one's horizon. Such a distance is indicated by a double reflexion from which the data is computed. Continuing, Professor Comstock said: "These observations should have been made frequently during his journey and may be more or less elaborate but re-

Social Lodge Of Lumbermen In Hot Springs Dedicate Tablet At Gordon, Ark., Where Order Was Organized.

Special to the Gazette.

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 9.—This was the big day of the eighteenth annual meeting of the Concentrated Order of Hoo Hoo, a fraternal and social lodge of the National Lumbermen's Association, which held its opening exercises yesterday. This being the ninth day of the ninth month, the delegates assembled at the mystical hour of 9:09 this morning to listen to the annual reports and transact other business of a routine character.

The business of the forenoon was hurried through and an adjournment was taken to permit the delegates to take a trip to the town of Gordon, where the order first sprang into existence in 1892. The visit was for the purpose of dedicating a handsome bronze memorial tablet to mark the place where the order was given birth. The site was that of the old Hotel Hall, in the parlor of which a small group of lumbermen met in 1892 and took the initial steps for the formation of the organization which has since grown to a membership of 20,000, extending practically all over the world.

The memorial tablet was designed by Julian Zolany, the noted St. Louis sculptor, and was executed at a cost of about $2,000. The dedication exercises were presided over by the Grand Snack of the Universe, Platt B. Walker of Minneapolis. A feature of the program was the reading of an ode written for the occasion by Harry J. Miller, a millionaire lumberman of Index, Wash.

Five Hundred Delegates and Visitors Representing Synods All Over Country, In Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 9.—Five hundred delegates and visitors were in attendance today at the opening of the thirty-second biennial session of the general council of the Evangelical Lutheran church in North America. The session will last a week, and will be devoted to the discussion of general church work, Sunday schools and missions. A general union meeting will be held Sunday afternoon in the Auditorium, at which address will be delivered by Judge Staake of Philadelphia and President Andrew of Augustana college.

Special to the Gazette.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 9.—The trial of the four men charged with the Union Pacific mail robbery here May 22 is scheduled to begin in the Criminal Court tomorrow. The evidence is considered by the police as absolutely proving the guilt of the prisoners. The strongest bit of evidence against them consists of a number of mutilated bills found in their possession at the time of their arrest and which are described in one of the letters that had been rifled and left by the robbers. The letter was addressed to the treasury department in Washington and came from a Wyoming bank. It referred to a number of pieces of mutilated currency which were enclosed, and asked redemption. The numbers mentioned corresponded with those on the bills found in possession of the alleged bandits.

Other evidence against the four accused men is their positive identification by the engineer and fireman of the robbed train and identification by schoolboys as having been seen around the school where the rifled pouches were subsequently found. The men are alleged to have been seen at the scene of the holdup two days before, and were soon at Fremont, Neb., a few hours before the train, which was afterwards robbed, left that station.

In addition to the Union Pacific robbery the postoffice inspectors believe that the four men may also have been guilty of the Great Northern robbery near Spokane, May 15, of the Denver and Rio Grande holdup at Littleton, Colo., February 27, and the Northern Pacific robbery at Morris Sliding, Mont., May 17.

Had Relapse On Sunday, Which Hastened His End.—Family At The Bedside.

HIS DEATH EXPECTED SOME DAYS

Wizard Of American Railways Unable To Regain Health Lost In His Struggle For Power And Wealth.

By Associated Press.
New York, Sept. 9.—The announcement is made that E. H. Harriman is dead and the official confirmation says:

"Edward H. Harriman died at his home at Arden, N. Y., at 3:35 this afternoon. Mr. Harriman has been ill health for a long time."

On last Sunday he suffered a serious relapse, due to acute indigestion, most widely accepted explanation, and he was unable to rally from the critical condition which then threatened his life.

With him at the time of his death were all the members of his immediate family and Dr. Lyle.

Stomach trouble developed more than a year ago and medical treatment gave no relief. This summer he went to Europe to consult the greatest specialists there but he was not benefited. On his return to this country he went at once to his magnificent country home at Arden where his death occurred.

Harriman is survived by a widow, two sons, Avery and Roland Harriman, and three daughters, Mrs. Rutherford Lyle, Miss Mary and Miss Carol Harriman.

Edward Henry Harriman, who will go down in history as one of the most spectacular financial geniuses, most daring stock speculators and greatest railroad magnates of his time, was born at Hempstead, Long Island, February 25, 1838, the son of the Rev. Orlando Harriman, Jr., rector of an Episcopal church in that town, founded in 1702. The early life of the future man of millions was one of great poverty. His father was a cultured but poor man, his mother came from an old and aristocratic, but equally impetuous, family of New Brunswick, N. J. The Rev. Orlando Harriman, Jr., had a large family, consisting of four boys and two girls and his income was altogether inadequate to feed, clothe and educate his children.

In 1856, when Edward Henry Harriman was but six years old, the family moved to Jersey City. The head of the family had no regular charge, but helped out wherever he could. On May 8, 1859, the Rev. Orlando Harriman, Jr., was made rector of St. John's at West Hoboken, with a salary of $200 a year. He remained in charge of the parish seven and a half years, until November, 1866. At that time his salary was $371 in arrears, which was compromised at $250 payable in six months, with interest. But little is known of E. H. Harriman's life during those years of poverty. The family lived in a small house on the meadow and it remained no end of ingenuity and economy to make both ends meet.

Edward H. Harriman received his early education at the district school and supplemented it by a two years' course in a boys' school under charge of an uncle, where the sons of clergymen had practically nothing for their education.

Edward's oldest brother, John Nelson, and his youngest brother, Orlando, became a real estate dealer in Brooklyn, N. Y., and his sisters, became the wife of Charles D. Shinn of Brown Brothers & Co., of New York and Annie, the other sister, married a Van Rensselaer, of the old and aristocratic family of that name in New York. The father died in April, 1881, at Jackson, N. Y., surrounded by all the comforts that wealth could procure. He was but 68 years old at the time of his death and had suffered much for nearly twenty years.

Edward Henry Harriman began his career as clerk in a broker's office on Wall street. He showed no unusual ability and for many years gave no promise of his later brilliant development. Socially he was well liked and those who knew him at that time described him as a sociable young man, however, was to the effect that during the famous "gold corner" engineered by Gould, Fisk, Kliber and others Edward H. Harriman plunged with all his own money and some borrowed from his brother, Orlando, and cleared enough to buy for himself, in August, 1870, a seat on the New York stock exchange.

Young Harriman married early in life and married very well. His wife was Mrs. Mary Averill of Rochester, N. Y., whose father was a capitalist and a successful railroad man. He was said to have made a large amount of money in the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg railroad. This marriage considerably strengthened the hands of young Harriman for the battle of life. It was in every way a very fortunate and happy alliance.

For a number of years the broker firm of E. H. Harriman & Co. did a thriving business on Wall street, speculating with its own funds and executing commissions for the Vanderbilts and other wealthy clients. It was not until 1883 that E. H. Harriman came actively into the railroad field. At that time he had become known as a capitalist, one of the few who had gathered together a great fortune in the ten-troubled years between 1870 and 1880. He was credited with having in his strong box a fair list of stocks he had picked up at extremely low prices during the various panics. Along in 1883 he was elected a director of the Illinois Central railroad. He was at that time working in close friendship with Stuyvesant Fish, who was elected second vice president in the same year. Mr. Fish had also been a member of the stock exchange from 1870 to 1879, and the two young men went into the Illinois Central to work along together. In 1887 Mr. Harriman became vice president and Mr. Fish was elected president. Mr. Harriman was then about forty years old. Whether Mr. Harriman entered the railroad field in accordance with an already matured plan of his or whether his accidental acquaintance with railroad matters suggested to him the enormous possibilities of acquiring the control of large railroad systems, is not definitely known. At all events, Mr. Harriman's entry into the directorate of the Illinois Central railroad marked the beginning of his career as a manipulator of railroad stocks and ro-

IS MAKING REPAIRSDelavan, Wis., Sept. 9.—The fifty-seventh annual opening of the Wisconsin School for the Deaf, has been postponed from Sept. 8 to 16. So extensive are the improvements being made at the school this year, that it was thought wise to delay the opening for a week when it is expected the building work will be practically completed.

One reason for the delay is that the legislative appropriation was delayed. Large gangs of Italians from Madison have been imported to handle the work.The old manual training school has been remodeled, making this a part of the girl's dormitory, connected with the main building by an 8-foot passageway. This is partly underground. The heating plant has been enlarged, requiring a new 6-foot tunnel under the dining room. The boys' dormitory has been given a new layout. Two thousand feet of concrete walks have been laid.Eight new forges were added in the forging room and a sewing room, millinery department, cooking school and studio were provided for the girls.To promote good behavior and make neatness "worth while," seven rooms were more completely furnished than the others and will be occupied by the most proficient and best-behaved students. In the boys' department all wooden beds have been substituted with iron beds. The old study room of the girls' department will be used for a museum. The next step will be the erection of a new school house, money for which has already been provided by the legislature.Probable That Marinette Method-

Perry Miller is also mentioned for other Kenosha or Janesville church although it is said that the Janesville delegates state that Mr.
Anderson would be acceptable to organizer of railroad systems which, in the course of ten or fifteen years, made him one of the greatest railroad kings ever known in the United States and placed him in control of more than 64,000 miles of water transportation lines and of railroad lines of an estimated length of nearly 27,000 miles.

During the panic preceding the election of President McKinley a number of large western railroads had gone to smash, among them the Northern Pacific and the Union Pacific. The wreck of the latter was particularly bad and seemed perfectly hopeless.

A Morgan syndicate made an attempt to rescue the road, but Harriman in sheer disgust, gave up the plan.

It has been said that Harriman was attracted to Lovett by the thinness of his face. "A man who worries about his business all the time is thin in the face," Harriman is reported to have said. "I want just such a man."

Lovett is very thin. Although 49 years of age, he weighs only 120 pounds. It is said,

He came to New York four years ago and lives at the Hotel Majestic. Besides his knowledge of the legal sides of railroading he has a wide grasp on the practical operation and improvement of railroads, and he knows the southwest and the far west like a book.

His right hand crushed to a pulp, William Zahel of South Pearl street, car-repairer, was taken to the hospital yesterday afternoon about two o'clock. Zahel had been instructed to make some repairs to a couple and while at work between two box cars the switch-engine backed into them. His right hand was caught between the knuckles of the cars and the last three fingers and the palm were horribly crushed. He was immediately hurried to the hospital, where Dr. Woods dressed the wound. Zahel is about forty-five years old, married and has five children. He has been employed as car-repairer only two months.

Man Confesses to Being Implicated in Several Crimes in Madison and Janesville.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 9.—Allen Beaumont, aged 22, arrested here yesterday in the net of burglary, confessed to complicity in six recent store robberies here and said his and his partner's stolen silks in Janesville. Two of his pals, he said, went to St. Paul to sell the proceeds of the other burglaries. His room, when searched, revealed over $2,000 worth of plunder.

Acting Chief John Brown has heard nothing of Beaumont's confession nor does he know of any silk robberies in Janesville since that of the Boatwright store several years ago.

AIRSHIP FLIGHTS IN ITALY.

Curtiss and Bleriot Test Machines—Wright Files in Germany.

Brescia, Italy, Sept. 9.—The aviation meeting in which many noted aeronauts will take part opened under conditions that were not altogether auspicious. Many thousands of spectators gathered around the field, but they were forced to bear a number of disappointments as with the exception of short flights by Glenn H. Curtiss, the American aviator, and Illström, the attempts of the other aviators were failures.

Several accidents occurred. Bleriot collided with a tree, the propeller of his machine being broken. His self was not hurt.

Berlin, Sept. 9.—Orville Wright made two successful flights over the Tempelhof parade grounds. Alone he did 21 miles in 30 minutes, but on his second flight he carried Capt. Von Hindenbrand as a passenger and flew for 17 minutes. It is estimated that fully 200,000 people were on the parade ground.

Instruction have been issued to make other seizures throughout the district. All of the flour to be taken is the output of the Columbus roller mills of Columbus, Wis., and is alleged to have been bleached with nitro-peroxyde in violation of the pure food laws. The company will fight the proceedings and make a test of the statute.

HARRIMAN BETTER, IS REPORT.

Doctor, Pastor and Friends Give Assurance of Improvement.

Turner, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Edward H. Harriman is better. This statement is based on the assertion of the two men closest to him outside of his immediate family. His medical adviser, Dr. William G. Lyle also said so. His spiritual adviser, Rev. J. Holmes McGuire, made the assertion in almost the same language after visiting the sick man personally.

Now for Mr. Harriman has improved and the precise state of his health is still a matter of conjecture and the subject of a succession of alarming rumors. The official information from the Harriman residence utterly failed to quiet these reports; and there seems to be some ground for the persistent if unconfirmed reports that he suffered a second slight attack of indigestion. There is no doubt that Mr. Harriman's recent condition has been desperate.

Robertson maintained a speed of 64.2 miles an hour, and beat the average made by Louis Strong, the winner of last year's race.

MORE THAN TWENTY MINUTES AFTER Robertson had flown over the finish line, Al Poole, driving the Italian Isotta-Fraschini, flashed under the wire in second place, having jumped into that position on the last lap. E. H. Parker, in a Fiat, captured third money.

STARTLING FIGURES

The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis located in New York city discusses the question of tuberculosis and its treatment.

Cruel and inhuman practices are alleged in a statement given out today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis against the eastern doctors who persist in sending dying cases of consumption to the southwest.

Fully 7,180 persons hopelessly diseased with tuberculosis annually come to die in the states of California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas and Colorado, most of them by order of their physicians.

The statement, which is based upon the testimony of well-known exports, and all available statistics, shows that at least 50 per cent of those who go to the southwest every year for their health are so far advanced in their disease, that they cannot hope for cure in any climate, under any circumstances.

More than this, at least 60 per cent of these advanced cases are so poor that they have not sufficient means to provide for the proper necessaries of life, which means that 4,315 consumptives are either starved to death, or forced to accept charitable relief every year.

It is not an uncommon thing, the National Association declares, for whole families, who can hardly eke out a living in the east, to migrate to the west in the hope of saving the life of some member of the family.

In most instances, the abject poverty of such cases forces them to beg, or to live on a very low level.

Often consumptives who cannot afford the proper travelling accommodations are found dead on the trains before reaching their destination.

The resources of almost every charitable organization in the southwest are drained every year to care for cases which would be self-supporting in their eastern homes.

It costs, on an average, at least $30 per month for the support of a consumptive in the southwest, including some medical attention.

The National Association strongly urges no one to go to this section who has not sufficient funds to care for himself at least one year, in addition to what his family might require of him during this time. It is also urged that no persons who are far advanced with tuberculosis go to so distant a climate.

Consumption can be cured, or arrested in any section of the United States, and the percentage of cure in the east and west is nearly the same.

Any physician, therefore, who sends a person to the southwest without sufficient funds, or in an advanced or dying stage of the disease, is guilty of cruelty to his patient.

Renewed efforts are being made to stop this practice, and to encourage the building of small local hospitals in every city and town of the country.

Attempts are also being made in southern California and in Texas to exclude indigent consumptives or to send them back to the east.

NO WARI

It was as everyone expected, The North pole having been discovered by an American, it is "claimed" by Great Britain. It is to "come up" in the house of commons, Sir George Parker, we are told, has given notice of his intention of asking Premier Asquith whether the territory discovered by the American explorers is not considered as belonging to Canada. Just think of that! He wants to know if the discovery gives to the United States any color or title to territory in the vicinity of his majesty's North American dominion.

No one anticipates a war between Great Britain and the United States over the North pole territory, though all are quite well aware that Great Britain may assert that its possession of Canada by right entitles it to ownership to all undiscovered lands where the thermometer descends below the instantaneous freezing point. But it is doubtful if Canada will press the point.

If Canada shall not insist, of course, England will not fight for the pole. And while we may claim it by virtue of discovery, yet we doubt that public sentiment in the United States would sanction a war over the North pole. By the time the Cook-Peary controversy shall be concluded we may be in no mood for fighting.

A New York corporation to deal with bohobos is the latest. It is a fair inference that in the management of this corporation's affairs a great deal of watering would be not only beneficial, but even necessary.

Evidently the finding of the North Pole ought to have been made by one of those stay-at-home scientists that know it all, like book-taught men—not real workers.

Nobody as yet has denied that President Roosevelt has discovered Africa or killed a few head of wild game, although it is to be expected every day.

Peary says the Eskimos say Cook did not go to the pole. Cook says he will bring those same natives to New York to prove he did. "Somebody lied."

They say that there is no chance of hay fever at the newly discovered North Polar regions. In fact, hay does not grow there at all.

Taft is ready to start for anywhere but the North Pole just at present and has been training to eat his way across the continent.

Why expend millions on battleships when California can prove that their coast is defended by sword fish nine foot long?

The school days have fairly begun, but by Saturday the newness will have worn off and it will be harder than ever to go to lessons.

President Taft on his 15,000-mile tour of the west and south will speak on "The new tariff and its effects." No doubt that the tour is one of them.

A Tokyo dispatch says China and Japan have reached an amicable agreement, but it seems as if China has done all the agreeing.

If the railroads continue to make cuts to secure the western mail contract, our annual postal deficit may become a memory.

Now that the Aeroplane has been really accepted as a genuine article it makes itself felt by the announcement it will not be trifled with.

Spain has not yet been able to make those Moors stay put as yet, although they have tried hard enough to settle it all.

American Locomotive's annual report indicates that, while it had steam all year, it did little running.

Persia's deposed Shah had the sympathy of the public until his pension was arranged. Now he is envied.

Secretary Ballinger is still on the carpet and his case is not yet disposed of by any means.

He leaned at night on his basswood club, and weary worn was he; "I just have slaughtered my millionth club, with my trusty snickerbox. When I was younger and full of vim, I followed my task with zest; but now I'm old and my eyes are dim, and my body FOOLKILLER longs for rest. I thought, when young, if I worked as hard as a span of army mules, there would come in season the due reward—the world would run out of fools. I've slain the fellow who rode a goat at a social jamboree; I got the Aleck who rocked the boat, and I smote him three times three. I cannot the chip with the empty gun, the girl with the cool oil can; the gaudy rounder who blew his man; I butchored, as man to man. No soul can say that I've shirked my task, or loitered an hour away; but the little roost that I faln would ask, seems far from my heart today. For the fools are thick as the blooming fleas on a hot-tailed yellow pup; and as I watch my spirit frenz, and my vitals wither up! Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

A $250,000 SMILE.

"Smiling Joe" Barron, aged twelve years, has made $250,000—not for himself, indeed, but for a home for sick and crippled children.

It was this way:

Some young doctors in New York city who had seen the suffering and lack in the tenement districts, where the very poor sweater in summer and shiver in winter, bought a cottage on the ocean and started a charity sanatorium on a small scale.

Joe Barron was their first patient.

Joe's back was twisted, and his legs were crooked, and he had tuberculosis of the bone—a sad combination of ills.

But when they came to see him Joe smiled up into the faces of the doctors, and his smile went straight to their hearts.

And so they took Joe out of the hot and dirty slums, out to their cottage, which they called "Sea Breeze." And there they strapped him to a board and hung him out in the fresh air just as an Indian mother hangs her pa-poose.

It hurt him, but Joe smiled.

And every few days those doctors with the strong arms pulled and twisted and stretched Joe's muscles so that the little fellow would sometimes cry out in pain, but no sooner did they quit trying to straighten out the kinks in his deformed body than the smile reappeared.

It was the smile that would not come off.

One day, some four years ago, President Roosevelt and his great friend Jacob Riis went to Sea Breeze. Joe didn't know the stout gentleman who looked at his twisted shape was the president, but he smiled the old sweet smile.

And impulsive Roosevelt said to Riis, "Can't we do something for this brave fellow?"

And Riis said, "I'm going to take the picture and tell the people about Joe."

Perhaps you have seen that picture in the magazine and the appeal that went with it. And the money came pouring in from all over the country in large and small amounts—enough to build a $250,000 hospital.

Joe's smile did it.

Joe's back is all right now, and his legs are as good as yours, and his friends will send him to school, and he will probably grow up a strong and useful man.

Certain it is that if he is given a fair chance Joe's smile will do the rest.

Moral.—When you are disposed to smile and wrinkle about your "hard line" think of Joe Barron's case and his bonny smile.

Want Steps Taken at Once to Compel Street Car Company to Rehabilitate Its Line or Quit.

Citizens generally are much aroused at the utter indifference shown by the owners of the Janesville street railway to their demands, made through the council, that they either put their line in good repair or forfeit their franchise.

Mr. Blabon, who represents the estate, replied to a letter sent by the city attorney that he would attend to the matter when he returned from a vacation, some time this fall. The attorney for the company, in answering the complaint presented to the railway commission, denied all charges made.

Here the matter rests. Of course the legal action has been started—the wheels greased—but it takes time for matter to be considered in court. Months of delay and then appeals and more delays. Evidently the owners of the car company intend to do nothing until compelled to do the tax-payers realize this fact.

It has been suggested by some of the more excited, that a vigilante committee be formed. Just what this committee would do—what they might do—it is hard to say. In the days of the palmy west and the bad men, the vigilantes were an important factor in every western community where obnoxious customs and persons resided.

Others who would keep within the law suggest that the council pass an order that would compel the road to take immediate action as to cars and tracks, say within thirty days, or have the line put out of commission until they did. This means more delay.

The franchise expressly demands these things and the car company has ignored its requirements, and also states it does not recognize the authority of the railroad commission, supposed to be the panacea of all such evils. If they would not obey the franchise they would laugh at the council's orders.

It is a known fact that should the present owners be compelled to give up their franchise that local capital is ready to be invested in a new line. In fact, a dozen men with more than enough money to build the finest line in the state, are ready to apply for a franchise the moment the field is vacant.

You'll believe me."

"It's mad," observed Mr. Van Torp, beginning to shave again. "Are you a lunatic?" he asked, pausing after a moment. "What's the matter with you, anyhow?"

"I am a musician, I tell you! I am a pianist!"

"It's the same thing," said Mr. Van Torp, working carefully on his upper lip under his right nostril.

"I shall tell you that you are a bachelier," retorted the voice.

"Well, that doesn't hurt," answered Mr. Van Torp.

He heard a snort of scorn on the other side and there was silence again. But before long, as he got away from his upper lip with the razor, he unconsciously began to whistle again, and he must have made the same mistake as before, for he was interrupted by a deep groan of pain from the next room.

"Not feeling very well?" he inquired in a tone of dry jocularity. "Stomach upset?"

"It's sharp!" screamed the wretched pianist.

Van Torp could hear him dancing with rage or pain.

"See here, whatever you are, don't call names! I don't like it. See! I've paid for this room and I'm going on whistling if I like, and just as long as I like!"

"You say you make noises you like?" cried the infuriated musician. "Oh, no! You shall not! There are rules! We are not in London, sir, we are in Bayreuth! If you make noises, you shall be thrown out of the house."

"Shall I? Well, now, that's a funny sort of a rule for a hotel, isn't it?"

"I go complain of you," retorted the other, and Mr. Van Torp heard a door opened and shut again.

In a few minutes he had done all that the conditions would permit in the way of minkling himself presentable, and just as he left the room he was met by Stomp, the 25 minutes having just over.

"Very good, sir. I'll do what I can, sir," said the excellent man, as Mr. Van Torp pointed to the things that lay about.

As he went out, he recognized the voice of his neighbor, who was talking excitedly in voluble German, somewhere at the back of the house.

"He's complaining now," thought Mr. Van Torp, with something like a smile.

He had already been to the best hotel, in the hope of obtaining rooms, and he had no difficulty in finding it again. He asked for Madame da Cordeau. She was at home, for it was an off-day; he sent in his card, and was presently led to her sitting room. Times had changed. Six months earlier he would have been told that there had been a mistake and that she had gone out.

"It's all very uncanny," Margaret said thoughtfully. "I wonder who those two men were, and what became of the one who disappeared."

"I've a strong impression that I saw him in New York the other day," Van Torp answered. "If I'm right, he's made money—doing quite well, I should think. It wouldn't surprise me to hear he'd got together a million or so."

"Really? What is he doing? Your stories grow more and more interesting."

"If he's the fellow, we used to call

Levi Longlegs on the ranch, he's a Russian now. I'm not perfectly sure, for he had no hair on his face then, and now he has a beard like a French snapper. But the eyes and the nose and the voice and the accent are the same, and the age would about correspond. Handsome man, I suppose you'd call him. His name is Kralinsky come and see me," Margaret answered. "Come and sit down and tell me how you got here—and why!"

"I think it's very kind of you to Margaret, who was hored to the verge of collapse on the off-days, thought him much ne'er than he had formerly been, and she liked his perfect simplicity.

"Stand anywhere you like," she said, "but let me hear the tune."

Van Torp rose and went to the window and she looked quietly at his square figure and his massive, sandy head and his strong neck. Presently he began to whistle, very softly and perfectly in tune. Many a street-boy could do as well, no doubt, and Mrs. Rushmore would have called it a vulgar accomplishment, but the magnificent prima donna was too true a musician, as well as a singer, not to take pleasure in a sweet sound, even if it were produced by a street-boy.

"But as Mr. Van Torp went on, she opened her eyes very wide and held her breath. There was no mistake about it; he was whistling long pieces from "Parfusif," as far as it was possible to convey an idea of such music by such means. Margaret had studied it before coming to Bayreuth, in order to understand it better; she had now already heard it once, and had felt the greatest musical emotion of her life—one that had stirred other emotions, too, strange ones quite new to her.

She held her breath and listened, and her eyes had been wide open in astonishment, slowly closed again in pleasure, and presently, when he reached the "Good Friday" music, her voiceless voice floated out with her unconscious breath, in such perfect octaves with his high whistling that at first he did not understand:

but when he did, the rough-hewn man shivered suddenly and started himself against the window-sill, and Margaret's voice went on alone, with faintly breathed words and then without them, following the instrumentation to the end of the scene, beyond what he had ever heard.

Then there was silence in the room, and neither of the two moved for some moments, but at last Van Torp turned, and came back.

"Thank you," he said, in a low voice.

Margaret smiled and passed her hand over her eyes quickly, as if to dispel a vision she had seen. Then she spoke,

"Do you really not know what that music is?" she asked. "Really, really?"

"Oh, quite honestly I don't!"

"You're not joking? You're not laughing at me?"

"I?" He could not understand. "I shouldn't dare!" he said.

"You've been whistling some of 'Parfusif,' some of the most beautiful music that ever was written—and you whistle marvellously, for it's anything but easy! Where in the world did you learn it? Don't tell me that those are 'old tunes' you picked up on a California ranch!"

"It's true, all the same," Van Torp answered.

He heard a snort of scorn on the other side and there was silence again. But before long, as he got away from his upper lip with the razor, he unconsciously began to whistle again, and he must have made the same mistake as before, for he was interrupted by a deep groan of pain from the next room.

Captain "Bob" Bartlett, master of the Roosevelt, who undoubtedly, according to present reports, was at the north pole with Commodore Peary, the time covered by his stay near the pole the sun was continuously visible above the horizon and at the pole its altitude above the horizon would remain practically the same throughout twenty-four hours."

"This," explained Professor Comstock, "would constitute the proof that he was at the pole if the sun's elevation did not change at all during the day and in case there is no attempt to challenge the explorer's veracity this should be accepted as satisfactory evidence. If, however, for any independent reason, his veracity should be challenged then the astronomical evidence would be of little value in supporting his word since data could be easily fabricated outright. Upon the whole it seems to be a pure question of accepting or rejecting the word of Dr. Cook and the astronomical evidence is purely subsidiary. I know no method by which we could furnish absolute truth that he had reached the pole."

Professor Comstock declared that the test offered by Professor Emanuel, the Italian astronomer, that an eclipse of the sun must have been observed at the time of the pole's discovery is absolutely without any scientific basis.

Any eclipse visible to the polar region might be even hundreds of miles from the pole and is no evidence that an observer was at the point where all meridians meet. If he saw the eclipse, No. 1, it is claimed, was scheduled for that time.

DEDICATION DAY AT STATE FAIR MONDAY

New Buildings Will Be Properly Opened with Special Ceremony.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 9.—Monday will be Dedication day at the state fair. The new buildings erected this year from the appropriation made by the last legislature and the surplus remaining in the board's treasury from previous fairs, will be dedicated to the purposes for which they are intended by men in the front rank of dairying, education, agriculture and fish culture. The most pretentious dedication will be that which will surround the turning over of the dairy building to the development of the dairying interests of Wisconsin. Former Gov. W. D. Hoard has accepted the invitation of the board and will deliver an address on the "Progress of Dairying in Wisconsin" at 3 p. m. Monday from a stand in the north end of the new model dairy building.

The dedication ceremony will start off at 1:30 p. m. when Superintendent of Schools C. P. Cary, through whose instrumentality the new model rural school has been built and by whom the plans were drawn, in an address on the steps of the Administration avenue, will explain how the town and village school boards can build duplicates of the model for less money than it cost to construct the building on the fair grounds.

At 2 p. m. Secretary Nevin of the state fish commission will declare the fisheries building open; and at 2:30 Charles H. Everett, editor of the Wisconsin Agriculturist and a member of the State Board of Agriculture, in the presence of some other most prominent farmers of Wisconsin who are interested in building, will tell of the model farmers' barns' good points and show the complete working apparatus in each department of the barn by practical exhibitions in the hands of a force of trained employees.

Lefebvre's Skull Fractured.

Juvy-sur-Orge, France, Sept. 9.—An autopsy on the body of M. Lefebvre, the French aviator, who was killed by the falling of his aeroplane, shows that death came as a result of fractured skull. The accident is attributed to the breaking of the rudder of the machine.

Wine Suit Against Lodge.

Bedford, Ind., Sept. 9.—In a suit for $2,000 against the Modern Woodmen to collect a life insurance policy for that amount, George Standard, administrator for the Frank Standard estate was given a judgment for $1,000 and costs.

DON'T EXPECT BIG RESULTS

from advertising until you have done some big advertising. Some men seem to forget that a ship cannot come in until it has been sent out. If you look for a big increase in fall business do some increased advertising.
